GREENVILLE, KY., THURSDAY, JANUARY 4, 1912.

50c. PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE

BE WELL DRESSED

SOME THINGS A YOUNG LADY SHOULD AVOID.

Short Skirts Don't Always Make a Girl Look Younger—Silk or Satin Raincoat is Not a Utility Garment.

Don't forget that you cannot make people think you have come to town in a motor car just because you wear a silly little bonnet or a huge chiffon veil.

Don't imagine that you look younger because you have elected to wear extremely short skirts; generally speaking, you only succeed in appearing ridiculous.

Don't buy a silk or satin raincoat and then use it for general utility purposes, if you would be well-dressed. A raincoat, as its name signifies, is to be worn in rainy or stormy weather, and is entirely out of place on a sunny day or for an evening wrap.

Don't forget that the veil you wear every day becomes very much soiled and is a real menace to clear skin. Your veil may be easily washed in chloroform or ether, and will dry in ten minutes.

Don't arrange your hair just like "all the girls do now," when it is the most unbecoming way you can wear it. Remember that each girl must keep in mind her own individual style and cater to it with a due regard, of course, for the present styles.

Don't choose clothes made on very extreme lines unless you can afford to follow every whim of fashion. Remember the well-dressed, well-bred girl is never conspicuous, and her clothes never attract undue attention on the street.

Don't buy cheap flowers for your hat trimming and imagine you are practicing economy. The flowers will fade with half a dozen wearings and your hat look shabby. Choose good ribbon instead, and while the first cost will be a little more, the wearing qualities of the material will more than make it up.

Don't wear a ready-made skirt until you have put a braid on the lower edge to protect it from wear.

Don't try to wear a ready-made petticoat with a drawing string in the top. Fit the garment smoothly at the waist and over the hips, and put it on a band to be fastened with buttons, hooks or snap fasteners. The new

RYE AND RAPE CATCH CROPS

Sown Just Before Cultivating Corn Last Time in July—Value as Fertilizer $6 Per Acre.

(By J. N. CLOVER, Pennsylvania.) Of the crops which I sowed ahead of the cultivator at the last cultivation of corn and potatoes to get a growth to turn under in the spring and to protect the land from winter washing, rye and Dwarf Essex rape were most satisfactory.

Rye was sown one year when the potatoes were taken out in September, and a heavy sod it made to turn under for oats in April.

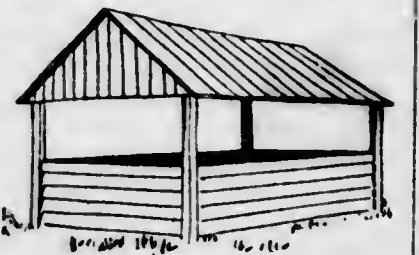

Another year rye was sown on corn stubble after the corn was cut at the rate of one and one-quarter bushels per acre, and it made a fair cover crop, which I know prevented washing, though the ground was harrowed only twice before drilling in the seed.

I should judge its value as a fertilizer is about six dollars per acre, and the seed costs only seven cents per bushel. Some of the rape was sown all winter, and because seeing the growth it had made in the standing corn were surprised, while the growth of cow peas in the same field was not encouraging. Crimson clover is a good catch crop. If one can secure a stand, and it lives through the winter, Rape is the best crop for mowing, considering the cost of seed and its fertilizing value, and rye is very good, especially when it is to be turned under for potatoes, or one wishes to pasture it in the fall.

Thomas M. McDonald.

Mr. Thomas M. McDonald, in his 71st year, died at his home near Nebo at midnight Monday, from ailments incident to his age. He was one of the best known men of his section, and his death reduces the ranks of the civil war veterans, he being a member of Co. K, 11th Ky. Vol.

This is the first death that has occurred in this family in 35 years, and is a remarkable record. He is survived by his wife and four children: Mrs. Della Garrett and Mrs. John E. Day, at Nebo, Mr. Chas. S. McDonald, south of town, and Mr. M. B. McDonald, of this city. Funeral services were held at the home by Rev. O. A. Bathee Tuesday afternoon, and at 4 o'clock the body was laid to rest in Nebo graveyard, many relatives and friends attending.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Morgan have a delightful New Year gift in the form of a girl baby.

Our New Councilmen.

Following the last session Monday night of the retiring board, the following members composing the new council were sworn into office for the ensuing two years: J. H. Smith, Biren

Morgan, D. Bradley, T. J. Spards, W.

McDonald.

Another year of the twentieth century has come and gone; nineteen hundred and eleven is a thing of the past. Its history has been made and written upon the scroll of fleeting time and now exists only in memory. Its scenes and events have been recalled, its destinies have been determined and sealed, its changes and results have been effected. During the year nineteen eleven the earth upon which we live made three hundred and sixty five revolutions and traveled through space in a circle around the sun nearly six hundred million miles causing the four seasons. The great clock has made eight thousand seven hundred and sixty strokes pealing out the warning call of the rapid movement of time. During the year nineteen eleven many catastrophes and phenomenal events took place upon land and sea, shipwrecks, train wrecks, mine explosions, earth quakes, floods and flames scattering ruin and devastation in which thousands of people, whose lives were full of hope and bright anticipations of future years, were lost and became subjects of misfortune and ill fated destiny. The year nineteen eleven had its wars and peace, its prosperity and adversity, money was lost and won, adventures were made, failures and achievements were realized, civilization and science advanced. People both prominent and obscure, who at the commencement of the year were engaged in the activities of life enjoying good health and a full measure of happiness, disappeared from among the living, and at the close of the year were not found.

Nineteen eleven had its trials and tragedies, its joys and festivities, its miseries and tears. Many changes have taken place in our nation, state, county and town. In our town some parents, children and friends have been consigned to the land of silence and to the forgetfulness of the grave; they were buried and covered up by friends who left them to their silent and solitary abode and rushed on in the battle of life and the hurly burly of time. We look back over the adventures of nineteen eleven and see our errors official. He was a native of the county and had resided here all his life. His dry humor, gentleness, liberality, made him the friend of all who knew him, and his long life has been a useful one.

Addie Keys.

To my mind the people of Powderly were checked Tuesday morning, December 26, when the news was telephoned from Hopkinsville that Miss Addie Keys had committed suicide, expresses it mildly. Her parents were distracted because of grief while it was a day of mourning for her many friends.

Miss Keys had been a sufferer for five years from indigestion, and was recently threatened with a nervous breakdown, yet she would not rest as her parents and friends wished her to do. Although she possessed great will power, the mental strain to which she was subject daily, together with her melancholy temperament was enough to cause her to become almost insane. The Marble & Concrete Company, for which she was bookkeeper, had sold to a new firm and Miss Keys was to have been promoted; this was another cause of worry to her, as it was a position of increased responsibility.

To those in whose breasts the love of life has been instilled from infancy the realization of the temptation of a would-be suicide is impossible; they can never feel that awful longing "To die to sleep no more" and by a sleep to say they end the heartache and the thousand natural shocks that flesh is heir to." They can never hear that hurling call which comes weird and mystic from beyond, and tells of realms of rest, where all the things of earth are forgotten; but to one who has grown weary of life and its emptiness, the temptation grows stronger daily, for the mind is gradually turned inward or towards self alone, and at last all interest in the outside world is gone; then comes the call, "Why not end it all?" Then as a slogan it keeps sounding "End it all." The victim is soon in a state of melancholy lunacy and maddest attempts are employed, will invariably end his own life. Miss Key must have reached such a state of mind, for she was too true to her high ideals of life to have committed such an act while rational. On Christmas night she accompanied her sister, Mrs. Horde, with whom she lived, and little son, to a show. And there was nothing unusual in her conduct, except after their return, when about to retire, she closed the door opening into her sister's room, which was usually left open, and

SKY-SEEKING.

Once I saw the aeroplanes
Whirl and vanish; just a stain
Glowed like ruddy gold again.
Then - - - no more of gold!
Blue on mighty blue, the sky
Reared around, terrific. I
Had not dreamed how heaven was high:
Yet, the sky was old.
Dearest, till I saw you there,
Wonderful and golden, where
I could hardly climb, or dare
Set my face toward you - - -
I had never dreamed how Love,
Height on height, past thinking of,
Lifts the hearts he yearns above:
Yet, Love was not new.

Now that the newly elected City Council have taken their seats as the governing body of the City and Ex-Councilmen C. W. Roark, C. M. Howard, C. M. Martin, R. E. Wallace, W. D. Blackwell and R. M. Dexter have stepped down it is not at all improper but entirely fitting to look back over the last four years and see what the retiring Council has accomplished for the public good.

THE RECORD has always been their friend and feels that its friendship and confidence has never by them been misplaced or betrayed. It will be many a day before any set of officers entrusted for a brief time with the government of affairs for the City will accomplish a more enviable record, and we wager our last penny that to excel it the present gentlemen in office will have to "go some." During their administration a stock law has been placed on the statutes which has proven its worth and advantage, and which has changed the very appearance of the City far beyond the expectation of its most ardent advocates. Unightly fences have disappeared to make way for the well kept lawn and the beautiful flower bed. More concrete sidewalks have been laid during the past administration than during all former administrations put together. More street crossings have been built for the convenience of the travelling public than ever before. A volunteer fire department has been organized and equipped which is the equal of any of the small towns of the State, and which has paid for the money expended on it a thousand times over. The city has been lighted with the best lighting system and power to be found anywhere. Insurance rates have been greatly reduced by reason of the judicious distribution of fire plugs; the work of concrete building has been fostered to that extent that sidewalks and similar improvements can be built here at a cost of from 25 to 35 per cent less than in our neighboring towns; residences are being built of it and mills and other business concerns are recognizing its superiority; the law has been enforced and its majesty maintained largely on account of and by grace of the

WAYS OF FASTENING FICHU

Dance Fashion Allows Wide Choice in the Matter—Many Pretty Ideas.

The favorite fichu can be fastened in as many ways as there are days in the week.

It can be short and crossed at the front under the girdle, or fastened by a pin in the center of the girdle.

Then the longer shape can be tied around the waist and finished in a short butterfly bow made of the ends.

Long ends hanging from short loops is another disposition of the fichu. There can be arranged in two strips or one over the other down the center of the back panel.

Some fichus of fine lace or tulle are arranged with very long ends at the back that sweep down into a court train.

At the back there can be used a buckle of roses or silk in any of the various forms that can be made at home.

The long, oval one of lace or silk with long, thin ends that are fastened across the back, can be worn especially if the lace or net fichu be over a powdered organdy.

Jewels or heads or other decorations used on silk, if the fichu be edged with platings of silk.

The black net fichu can be caught at the front and the back under a velvet girdle. A girdle of roses or a cord is but another way of making the fichu an integral part of a costume.

The fichu is an important feature this summer. The fastening of it will do much to make or mar the appearance of the gown.

Indigestion

Stomach trouble is but a symptom of, and not in itself a true disease. We think of dyspepsia, flatulency, and indigestion as real diseases, yet they are symptoms only of a certain specific nerve sickness—nothing else.

It was this fact that first correctly led Dr. Shoop to the creation of that now very popular stomach Remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Acting directly on the stomach nerve, alone brought the stomach and favor to Dr. Shoop and his Restorative. Without that original and highly vital principle, no such lasting accomplishments were ever to be had.

For stomach distress, bloating, biliousness, bad breath and acid stomach, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative. It will build up your health and give you what it contains will do. We sell and cheerfully recommend.
